Why join us?

The British Geriatrics Society is the professional body of specialists in the health care of older people in the United Kingdom. Geriatrics is the largest medical specialty in the UK, and the majority of consultant geriatricians and trainee geriatricians are members of our Society. So are a growing number of specialist nurses, therapists, and other allied health professionals. We are proudly multidisciplinary!

We welcome all relevant disciplines, including Physician Associates and those in training, who have an interest in the care of older people. Our range of professional support and benefits, include:

- Regular conferences focused on professional learning, including sessions on frailty, continence, dementia, delirium, perioperative care, nutrition, falls and other key issues
- Discounted registration fees for all multi-disciplinary BGS events
- Print and online subscriptions to the influential Age and Ageing journal (enhanced benefit)
- Access to a network of specialists and experts in the care of older people
- Bi-monthly BGS Newsletter
- Monthly ebulletin
- Membership of disorder-specific special interest groups focusing on dementia and related conditions, falls prevention and bone health, community geriatrics, nutrition and many more
- An influential national policy voice, on subjects including frailty, dignity and care homes
